

Don C. Hall Says:

How often have I heard the lament, "I was for Lowden, how can I vote for Hoover?"

They say, that, "a Yankee answers one question by asking another, and by the Yankee method this can be answered by the question, 'How can you vote for any one else?'"

No one could have been stronger for Hon. Frank O. Lowden, than I was. In fact my respect and regard for him as a public spirited citizen and official was of such a nature that immediately after the Kansas City Convention, I wrote the sentiment in semi poetic verse which I quote here:

I was for Lowden. Was he so great, you were for him, you ask,
Well no, but a man of the People equal to any task.

A man who proved his metal, like the temper in the steel.

A man that when you're with him, makes you feel,
That life is a little better because he's here with us,

With sedate and quiet manner and very little fuss,

He knows his oats, he knows his corn and all the other stuff,
That grows up from the soil for his farming is no bluff.

In war, in Peace, in home pursuits, he stood the test for men.
"Rather right than President", is what he said and then,

Back to Sinsissippi Farm, the tiller of the soil

Yes, he is great I say it now, a friend of those who toil.

And today you are going to find Mr. Lowden for Hoover, and I am indeed glad to fight side by side with "Our Frank" for Hoover and the "survival of the fittest".

The consensus of opinion wherever I have traveled in Illinois, Indiana and other states, is, that when the People get back from the "land of deep conjecture" they will have made the decision to settle the "farm problem" the "wet and dry" issue and even the "Religious issue", with the man and party most capable of settling the questions right and with determined dispatch.

The Illinois situation is somewhat complicated. There is a lack of capable leadership among the Republicans, and in fact in both the Democratic and Republican parties. I haven't seen any one jumping on their hat or shouting at the mention of either Emerson or Thompson's name. But Illinois must and will be safely Republican in November, for rural New York, and the farming districts of other Eastern states are reaching out to us of the "corn belt" and crying for our help in this emergency.

The "side walks of New York" have produced very few farm experts except in the green fields of Politics, and for one strenuously object to the attempt, to establish, a farm experimental station on one of New York City's thoroughfares.

That the Illinois "Campaign of Education" is being neglected, there is no doubt.

I note that the organizing of the voters for Emmerson is being placed in the hands of Mrs. Lottie Hollman O'Neil. While Mrs. O'Neil's heart is undoubtedly in the right place and her intentions are of the best, she has never developed any great strength as a vote getter either in or outside of the Legislative Halls and her face or voice would hardly be recognized or remembered by any material number in any particular gathering even in the District she has represented for three terms.

Let women of the State like the lady from Joliet and her two talented daughters, who by their efforts made Mrs. O'Neil's nomination possible, lend their assistance to recognize "He, go getters", and the voters of the State of Illinois will answer the cry of their Eastern brothers and sisters with a majority for Emmerson, Hoover and Curtis, that will make us all sing as we do our fall plowing and prepare for the continued prosperity of 1929.

Chicken Farm

Development Ends

The Hinkamp Chicken Farm Development scheme which was to have been launched at Mokena, has failed to materialize. The Cappel farm deal in which this realty company figured prominently has failed to mature and the farm has gone back to the Cappel estate. Attorney Frank Brummund of Joliet who represents the Cappel interests states that the realty company has gone in to the hands of a creditors committee.

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL SHOWS ADVANCEMENT

Orland Park School opened its doors Tuesday morning to a capacity throng of bright faced students, all anxious to begin work under their new teachers and in their newly decorated building.

The building has been newly decorated and cleaned from top to bottom and was made attractive in its shiny paint and blackest of black boards.

There has been almost a complete change in the faculty of the school. Prof. E. Earl Holt is the new Principal and high school instructor. Prof. Holt is a graduate of the Universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin and has had years of experience teaching in Wisconsin Schools. He has a record of achievement behind him as an instructor and as an executive and great things are looked for under his administration.

Miss Evelyn Smith, assistant to the principal is a graduate of Oberlin University and has received her experience in the Schools of Ohio. She served for a year as supervisor of musical training in the Alton Ohio Schools. She will make music and dramatic art an important part in the curriculum for the coming year. Miss Smith also attained some fame in athletic and gymnastic work and will supervise this phase of the girls activities.

The elementary grades present an entirely different lineup than in past years. Realizing that the first two years of school work are the foundation on which the child's education is to be built and also realizing how difficult it was to attempt to give the little ones the proper start when out in the same room with older children, the Board of Directors have seen their way clear to having a separate room and teacher for the 1st and 2nd grades only. Miss Helen Snyder, who served so capably last year as instructor of the lower grades, will be in charge of the primary room. Miss Snyder needs no introduction—a graduate of the University of Illinois and special work at Wisconsin, she demonstrated in her work last season her fitness for the position. With only two grades to look after, Miss Snyder can teach the little ones the games, the songs, the methods of play etc., that lay the foundation for the work of the higher grades and which were impossible under the old 4 class system.

The intermediary grades, the 3rd, 4th, and 5th years, will be under the supervision of Miss Lucille Schmadeke. Lucille is an Orland product and her work in the Oak Lawn school last year, demonstrated her worth and fitness to teach in our own school.

Miss Schmadeke is also a University of Illinois graduate.

The upper grades, 6, 7, and 8th, will be under the direction of Mrs. Lulu Campbell. Mrs. Campbell comes to us with an enviable record as an instructor in such difficult schools as Herrin and Carbondale. She has the real teaching instinct and this, backed by her experience and training will make her a loved and valued adjunct to the teaching staff.

Peter Ott still remains the capable and efficient custodian of the building and credit for the new decorations go to him.

The High School course will be expanded and amplified. Prof. Holt is working with the Chicago High Schools principals and will offer a course that will be exactly the same as given in the Chicago Schools, thus giving our graduates full and complete credit for their work.

Gymnasium and music are to be part of the course, and both Prof. Holt and Miss Smith will attempt to organize and supervise teams to compete in the various athletic sports.

The library and laboratory equipment has been added to and brought up to better than standard.

Parents who have any doubt as to where to send their boys or girls will do well to get in touch with Dr. Sherman Knox, Secretary of the Board of Directors and he can speedily show you where your children will receive as good a training in the Orland Park School as in any of the larger city schools.

PICTORIAL LIFE OF HERBERT HOOVER

No. 5

By Satterfield

1. After the death of Herbert Hoover's mother in 1894, he went to live with his Aunt Millie in Cedar Rapids, Ia.

2. He was now ten years of age—old enough to assume an important share in all manner of farm work.

3. In winter Herbert and his cousin rode on horseback to school two miles away.

4. The future engineer constructed a mowing machine out of an old cross-cut saw, using a heifer for power.

Miss Niedtelt Weds Pastor's Son

A very pretty wedding took place at the Coopers Grove church Saturday afternoon, September 1st, at 4 o'clock, when Herbert A. Pedderson, son of Rev. Pedderson and Miss Clara Niedtelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Neitfeldt were united in marriage. Rev. Pedderson of Coopers Grove church performing the ceremony.

The bride was dressed in white and wore a bridal veil. She was attended by her sister Dora and a sister of the groom, Miss Concordia Pedderson. All carrying bridal bouquets.

August Neitfeldt a cousin of the bride and her brother Henry Neitfeldt served as best men. Two little nieces of the groom served as flower girls. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. Many beautiful presents were received. At a late hour the guests, consisting of relatives and friends departed for their various homes wishing the young married couple much joy and happiness in their new home.

Former Bremen Twp. Resident Dies In Indiana

D. M. Turney, civil war veteran, aged 81 years, former postmaster of Harvey and one time resident of Bremen Township, died last Thursday at the home of his son in Hanna, Indiana of intestinal flu. He was ill only a few days. Funeral services were held Sunday at his old home in Shelbyna, Mo.

Mr. Turney was born on a farm about two miles north of Tinley Park, October 21, 1847. He served thru the civil war and was wounded being shot thru the nose. He served in the 39th Illinois Volunteer Infantry. In 1891 he was appointed postmaster of Harvey which position he held for a number of years. After leaving Harvey he bought farm land near Piper City, Ill. About 16 years ago he disposed of this land and bought several farms in Shelbyna, Mo.

He was very active for a man of his age and only recently he attended a big family re-union on the old Mark Crandall farm two miles east of Tinley Park and was apparently in good health. He was visiting with his son in Indiana when he was stricken.

Mr. Turney was a brother of the late Mrs. John Fulton of Tinley Park and his death marks the end of the older members of the Fulton family. His wife passed away a number of years ago. He is survived by three sons, two residing in Shelbyna, Mo., one in Indiana and a host of other relatives and friends.

Youths Present Social Problem

Last week we ran an article about a boys dugout being raided in the basement of the old abandoned Stellwagon building in Mokena. Friday evening a company of boys who had figured in the case called at the office of the News-Bulletin to protest that they were not trying to set fire to the building and that they had not used gasoline, but had used kerosene in a lamp.

The boys then told a tale that sure is food for thought. They stated that there is not a thing for them to do in town and there is nothing they can put their energies in that will be of a beneficial nature. They said they had been flamed by older people and that they saw older persons gamble and smoke and did not feel they were doing any thing out of the way if they did likewise. They admitted that they looked up to some people as their model and when these persons fail to measure up to their standard they do the same thing as their model and feel they could not be condemned as bad boys.

The fact of the matter is these boys are RIGHT. They are not bad boys at heart and if their energies were diverted into the proper channels.

News-Bulletin Is Ten Years Old

With this issue the News-Bulletin has reached its 10th birthday. This paper was born with a suit case full of type and an old press. In 10 years it has grown from a 5 column paper to a 6 column and has a modern plant equipped with a linotype and speedy cylinder press.

The paper was started on a shoe string but after hard work and a liberal advertising and subscription patronage it has at last reached a firm footing and now serves over 5000 readers every week. The editor is grateful to his many loyal friends and patrons who have made this success possible.

The Easiest Way to Keep in Style

By
MAE MARTIN

No woman would wear dresses, or blouses, or stockings of a color that's decidedly out of style or faded, if all of us knew how easy it is to make things fresh, crisp and stylish by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. Anybody can tint or dye successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. Tinting with them is as easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little longer. New, stylish colors appear like magic, right over the old, faded colors. Diamond Dyes never spot, streak or run. They are real dyes, like those used when the cloth was made. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. D-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

There is mention of a ferryboat in the Bible. Following the death of his son, Absalom, King David went into retirement, and after he was persuaded to return to his house, a ferryboat was sent to bring over the king's household. See II Sam., chapter 19.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter, and a scarcity of words; for whoever is master of language, and bath a mind full of ideas, will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas, and one set of words to clothe them in; and these are always ready at the mouth; so people come faster out of a church when it is almost empty, than when a crowd is at the door.—Jonathan Swift.

GREEN PEAS

There is no vegetable so well liked and often served from June until the last crop is frost bitten than peas. One may buy a fine variety canned, but the sweet, fresh vegetable, cooked in very little water and served with a pinch of sugar, salt, pepper and a little butter or cream is always enjoyed.

Shrimp Wiggle.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of pepper and when smooth one cupful of milk added slowly. Stir and cook until the mixture is thick. Remove the intestinal veins from the shrimps and break into pieces. Add the sauce with one cupful of cooked peas and serve on toast. Chicken, salmon and other meat or fish may be used in place of shrimps.

Peas With Onions.—Cut two slices of bacon into squares and put into a saucepan with four button onions peeled and halved; cook, shaking the pan until the bacon is crisp. Add one tablespoonful of flour, mix until smooth, then add one cupful of stock or water and cook ten minutes. Add one pint of fresh peas, season with salt and pepper. Cook until the vegetables are tender.

Peas Souffle.—Take four tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour; when well blended and cooked add one cupful of milk and cook until the mixture boils and is well cooked. Add one cupful of cooked mashed peas, the yolks of three eggs well beaten, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and a few drops of lemon juice. Fold in the beaten whites and put into a well-buttered baking dish. Set in a pan of water and bake until firm.

Spanish Meat Dish.—Put thinly sliced potatoes into a buttered baking dish, cover with a sprinkling of thinly sliced onion, then add any leftover meat, cold roast of beef, with any gravy left, add one cupful of tomato or more to moisten the dish, and bake until the potatoes are tender. Just before serving sprinkle the top of the dish with a half cupful more or less of cooked peas. Serve from the dish.

Ice-Box Cookies.

We never grow too old or staid to enjoy the old-fashioned rolled cookie; but in these days so full of so many things to do, we are glad to have the cookies made in a few moments, placed in the ice chest and baked in the early morning.

Chocolate Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one egg well beaten, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two squares of chocolate melted. Beat well and add alternately one-fourth cupful of milk and two and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Make into rolls. Chill and bake in the morning.

Butterscotch Cookies.—Soften but do not melt one cupful of good shortening. Add four cupfuls of brown sugar, four well-beaten eggs, about seven cupfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add one tablespoonful of vanilla. Mix, using the hands if necessary. Make into rolls and place on a tray or board and let stand in the ice chest over night. Cut into thin slices and bake in a quick oven about six minutes.

Fruit Cookies.—Mix five quarts of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two quarts of brown sugar, one tablespoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, the grated rind of two lemons, one-half pound of candied orange peel, one-fourth pound of candied citron finely sliced and two pounds of chopped almonds. Mix the following: One pound of butter and one pound of any good sweet fat melted, one cupful of cream, five teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in one-half cupful of hot water and four beaten eggs. Combine the mixtures. Roll and place on ice. In the morning slice into thin slices and bake in a moderate oven. These cookies will keep a year.

Peanut and Almond Cookies.—To one cupful of softened shortening add one cupful each of brown and white sugar. Add three well-beaten eggs, one pound of roasted, shelled and chopped peanuts or half a pound of shredded almonds; five cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of cinnamon. Make into rolls and chill. Slice and bake.

tunity for color effects which add to becomingness. The hat in the oval to the right is dark brown with a russet facing, these favorite fall colorings repeated in the trimming.

BACK TO BONNETS IS LATEST; TAFFETA FOR EVENING WEAR

BACK to bonnets, so says the mode. That is, if you do not prefer one of the smart head-fitting toques which are also immensely popular this season. Fashion is smiling approval on both.

The bonnet vogue started some time ago and it is growing more important every minute. The outstanding thing about the new bonnets is that they adopt a drooping side silhouette. That tional programs presented through style shows such as it has become the custom to stage not only in the larger cities but in lesser ones as well. At the same time these exhibitions are versing women as to fashion's trend, they are also cultivating a deeper appreciation of dress as an art in the truest sense of the word.

The lovely gown in the picture is typical of the exquisite apparel which makes them very different from the bonnets which have gone before.

This drooping side effect sometimes follows the simple natural lines. Then again it is achieved through most cunning plaits and fluted contours. Paris modistes are playing up these side brims which hug the face in every possible ingenious way.

It is really astonishing, the clever things designers are doing with bonnet brims. Sometimes they cut them away in a diagonal line across the eyes, developing Dutch bonnet flanges at the sides. Sometimes, too, the milliner plaits the brim across the neck at the back.

Even the soft vagabonds which are so popular an item for early fall emphasize the face-framing idea. The first-hat in this picture, which is a new type vagabond, is trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in two tones.

Leather or stitched fabric belts, which are brass-eyleted, are often buckled about the crowns of these soft ripple-brim sports hats as per the model pictured last in this group.

Two colors of felt are worked together for the cloche at the top to the right. The autumn mode throughout entire costume styling features combinations of colors either in blends or contrasts.

A pleasing development in the bonnet vogue is that of the contrasted facing. This gives a splendid oppor-is gracing autumn's featured style parades. This handsome model was exhibited at a showing recently staged in Chicago in a salon of one of its finest hotels by leading local stylists under the auspices of the Associated Dress Industries of America. The study of the details of this charming evening frock is a revelation of that which is being planned for wear at smart formal after-six-o'clock affairs this autumn and winter.

First of all this fetching gown proclaims taffeta in unmistakable terms. The moment one glimpses it, one senses the importance of taffeta for the coming months. Not only taffeta in beguiling solid tones and tints, but flowered taffetas are bespoken for evening wear, made up in most picturesque fashion, too.

Bouffancy, uneven and exceedingly full hemlines, huge to one-side bows, all these fascinating details silhouette themselves in the mind at sight of this exquisite mode. Perhaps most outstanding is the graceful capelet of spangled net which envelops the shoulders so intriguingly. Too much cannot be said in regard to the shoulder cape and fichu effects, also floating draperies which are featured throughout the new stylings.

Another interesting item is the corsage bouquet of feather flowers. Costume flowers are trending to the strikingly unique. They are being made of tinsel ribbons, of beads, of jewels and many trailing effects are observed.

"I don't wonder," Weld declared, "and yet you had all sorts of friends and servants at hand, and local police, and passers-by. Now, up here, you may think you are perfectly secure because you hardly ever see a stranger, yet the woods may be full of them."

Grant tried to laugh; in reality his heart was thumping against his ribs painfully. He forced himself to appear interested.

"Then there might be outlaws and bad men watching us right now?"

Weld's answer appalled him.

"There are," said Swithin Weld. "I meant to have asked you if you'd seen anyone who answered to the description given by the fire warden. This man was a big, wild-looking bird with a rifle. Philbrick, the fire warden, knows every one for miles around, but he'd never set eyes on him before. He thinks it's a bootlegger blazing a trail down from the Canadian border."

"More probably a tramp," Trent suggested. "They often prospect for winter quarters about now, when the nights get cold."

Weld shook his head. Grant could see that this explanation did not satisfy him. There was a constriction about Grant's throat which made speech difficult. He hardly recognized his own voice.

"What do you think?" he demanded. "I don't know what to say. The thing that puzzles me is what he wanted to prowl around this place for at about two o'clock this morning."

"That's interesting," Trent cried.

"How near was he?"

Weld turned to the quaking Grant. "You know that big tree outside your window, the one they call Washington's oak? He was sheltering behind that."

"Why didn't you put a bullet through him?" Grant cried with a passionate energy which he could see surprised his host. Fools! thought Grant, to speculate on a man his heart told him was Frank Sutton. His tumultuous emotions swept away all fear that his manner might be offensive. "Why didn't you shoot?"

"My dear Grant," Weld said, lifting his eyebrows a little, "what sort of defense could I have made to a judge and jury if I admitted I took a pot shot at a man who might be innocent of any wrong-doing? I propose we stalk him tonight and find out all about him."

"Fine," Trent agreed, his eyes sparkling. "He doesn't stand a chance against the three of us."

"The three!" Grant echoed. Not for worlds would he venture into the gloom of that forest by night. He knew it would be his fate to find the stranger face to face. While the others were creeping along wrong trails Sutton would have him at his mercy. Grant's flesh quaked at the thought.

"Don't you want to be in on the fun?" Weld demanded.

"I do not," Grant said irritably. "To begin with, you'll never catch him, and I don't want to go stumbling over roots and brambles in the dark looking for a single man in a forest as big as this."

"You needn't come if you feel that way," said Weld, "but it won't be as hard to get him as you think. We shall wait until everything is quiet and he comes out to gaze at your window."

"My window!" Grant cried.

"You are the only person with a room at the southwest corner. I'll swear he was looking up at your room."

"I'll put a bullet through his head if he looks up again," Grant said savagely. His terrors were making him careless of any feelings but his own.

"I hope you won't," Weld said, a trifle stiffly. "Both for your own sake and that of my uncle. To have a man murdered for looking up at a window isn't a thing that would please him."

"It wouldn't be murder, it would be self-defense," Grant answered sullenly. "I'm not going to be threatened and not put up a fight."

Trent looked at him with a sudden interest.

"Then you know who it is?" he demanded.

Grant was conscious that he had said too much. With a tremendous effort he pulled himself together.

"No more than you do," he returned.

"It's this constant talk of crime that gets me nervous."

Trent turned to Weld and discussed methods of capture. It was plain to Grant that his conduct had disgusted them. He did not greatly care. He felt he needed the protection of elites and crowds. Tomorrow he would go. But first there was this damnable night to live through.

As a rule, after dinner Grant sat in the library before the open fire while the others played billiards. Tonight he would not remain alone. He followed them into the billiard room, but declined to play. His nerves were in no condition for that. That they ignored him did not hurt his feelings now. What he wanted was protective companionship not conversation.

He went to his room at midnight. Instead of turning on the central lights he lighted only the shaded reading lamp over the bed. From the outside it would seem the room was dark.

There came a rap at his door. There was no way of locking or barring it as he had long ago found out. It was Anthony Trent who came in. He had changed his clothes to a garb more suited for the task that was before him. Trent switched on the lights regardless of Grant's expostulations.

"Don't you understand," he said, "that this room seems the attraction? We want whoever it may be outside to think you are still here. It's one o'clock now and Weld and I are going outside. Keep the light up whatever you do."

Trent came to the foot of the bed and looked at Grant.

"Grant," he said slowly, "you're not in a normal state. I don't know what it is but you give me the impression of being under a terrific strain."

"I am," said Grant. "It's just h—i." "Is it anything you could tell me? Many a man has gone insane from keeping his troubles to himself too long. They say an open confession's good for the soul. You must know what it is that's turning you into an abject coward. Is life worth living under such conditions? Perhaps I've no right to say it, but peace of mind is worth more than a fortune or position."

"I'm Just Irritable and Out of Sorts."

Grant could not possibly realize what a confession would mean. Its effect would be to free Sutton and put himself in its stead. Assuredly a life of ease and luxury was worth fighting for. Tomorrow he would rush back to New York and take passage in the first steamer he could find to some other country. There at least, he would be safe.

"My dear Trent," he said, with an affectation of tolerant scorn in his voice. "You couldn't possibly understand. You are an idler and I am the head of a big business. My worries are incredible. I'm just irritable and out of sorts. What I want is a good night's sleep."

"For a moment there was a look on Trent's face which Grant thought expressed pleasure. But it passed quickly. Grant felt relieved that he was conquering his panic fears. There had been a moment when he nearly blurted the whole thing to the man facing him.

Downstairs, Trent sought out Swithin Weld. "I gave him a chance to tell me but he shut up like a clam." "I'm glad," Weld retorted, "that sort doesn't deserve any chance. I prefer this way of getting a confession."

From the window to which he crept timorously, Payson Grant saw the two men set out on their quest. For a time he was alone in this big silent camp, at the mercy of any stronger than he. It was difficult to resist the temptation to extinguish his light. He hoped the two men would not wander too far afield. Almost he wished he had gone with them. Here, he was in a trap. In fact, the trap was baited with Payson Grant.

The oriental drug of which a medical friend had warned him was close at hand. He gulped down one of the pellets eagerly. Anything would be better than this fear which had been gun to fold him about. The drug had not been recommended as a soporific; in combination with a sleeping tablet it had never failed to give him a dream-filled slumber from which ordinary disturbances could not awaken him.

Tonight it lost its potency. He awoke with great suddenness, and in full possession of his senses, at two o'clock. Subconsciously, this hour had been impressed upon him. His sleep had lasted but half an hour.

Although his first impression had been one of absolute quiet, he could hear, as his ears grew accustomed to it, that the silence was broken continually by innumerable little sounds. Boards creaked. Insects called shrilly. Even the winds in the trees seemed to menace him. His hand crept underneath his pillow for the automatic pistol. He was still in his dressing gown; he slipped the weapon into his pocket and sat up in bed.

By this time the drug had lost its hold. He was more frightened than he had been before he took it. His fears were like the nightmare terrors of a nervous child. He was certain that somewhere in this deserted house there were deadly forces concentrating themselves on his destruction. There was no safety for him anywhere.

His ears were now attuned to catch disturbing sounds with a peculiar distinctness. The rattling of the door knob grew louder to his disturbed senses. He could not keep his eyes from it. He believed it could not turn as it did without some human agency. As he gazed at it in pitiable horror, he heard, with great clearness now, footsteps advancing along the corridor to his door. It was only now that he knew those other more vague sounds had not been man-made. The steps approaching had in them nothing of furtiveness or stealth. He snatched up a book and sought to compose his drawn features. He believed Trent was coming and he did not wish to show fear after his brave words.

He did not even glance up immediately from his book. He yawned elaborately and then raised his eyes. Frank Sutton stood at the foot of the bed.

The look that he bent upon his betrayer seemed to have so little anger in it that Grant was amazed. The storm of passionate vengeance which he had anticipated was wanting. There was a look, instead, of a stern and settled purpose which frightened Grant more than any other attitude could have done.

"My note said I would see you on the seventeenth," Sutton remarked. "It was an error and should have read the twenty-seventh."

"What do you want?" Grant nerved himself to ask.

"First of all a talk. Get out of bed and sit here." He pointed to a chair at one side of the open fireplace. When Grant had dragged himself across the room Sutton, after lighting a cigarette, sank into the chair opposite.

"When I last saw you," he began, "I swore to kill you on sight. I thought then that nothing else would satisfy me. Three years of prison made me see things in another light. Your death would not satisfy me now. There must be a different punishment from that."

Grant tried to speak but there was a tightness in his throat which strangled the words he wanted to utter. Assuredly, this calm, quiet man frightened him more than he could have believed possible.

"You are going to taste the same bitterness that I experienced. You do not yet realize what that means. In the first place you will be stripped of fortune and reputation even as I was. Day after day you will sit in a court and hear all the many little deeds of your life unfolded. You will see your friends avert their eyes from you. Those who believed in you will look with scorn. And in the end—like me—you will lose Naticia. Is not that better for me than if I were to take your life, here and now?"

Payson Grant was oppressed with the inevitability of this fate. It seemed almost as though Sutton had the gift of prophecy. His weary head drooped on his chest. There seemed no way of escape. He was sinking in deep and turbulent waters. Desperately he fought for something to say to this stern and silent man.

Peking Child Beggars Bane of Foreigners

Even Cairo and Naples cannot compare with Peking in the number and persistence of the professional beggars who swarm upon the streets and annoy strangers with their supplications.

In Peking the casual tourist will do well to buy a "small dime" coppers before he goes out—that means twenty-eight coppers—and to distribute a copper here and a copper there. It purchases immunity from annoyance.

The permanent resident obtains immunity only by being as "hard-hearted" as the Chinese themselves—and never giving. If one lives in Peking for a time and maintains a "ricksha boy and several servants, one's doorway will not be bothered, for the magical words "ta boo gay"—"He nothing gives"—spread rapidly. Recently the doorways of the foreign hotels were beset by

As a matter of fact, these little begging girls are all hired, as are also the infants by fat, sleek men who control this beggar ring and prey upon ignorant foreigners.

Lesson for September 9

PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:16-18:11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells of Jesus in Two Great Cities.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Tells of Jesus in Two Great Cities.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul As a Worker.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul, Preacher and Teacher.

1. Paul Disputing with the Athenians (vv. 16-21).
L. The occasion (v. 16).
While waiting for Timothy and Silas, Paul saw the city of Athens wholly given to idolatry. This stirred his spirit. It is the consciousness of the world's lost condition that impels disciples to witness of Christ's saving power.

2. The place (vv. 17-21).
(1) In the synagogue (v. 17).
True to his custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered in to earnest argument with the Jews and the devout persons there.

(2) In the market place (v. 17-21).
From the Jews he turned to such as were "outsiders" in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. The former were atheist materialists, denying the doctrine of creation and giving themselves up to sensual indulgence, rejecting the idea of a future judgment. The latter were pantheists. When they heard the preaching of Paul they invited him to the Areopagus to speak to them of this new doctrine.

3. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (vv. 22-34).
1. The introduction (vv. 22-23).
He introduces his discourse in a courteous and conciliatory manner saying that as he was viewing the city he beheld an altar with an inscription "to the unknown God." This was his point of contact.

2. The body of his discourse (vv. 24-31).
(1) A declaration concerning God (vv. 24, 25).
a. The material universe was created by Him (v. 24).
b. His spirituality and immensity (v. 24). Being essentially spiritual He demands heart worship, and being transcendent He is not confined to earthly temples.

c. His active providence (v. 25). He gives being, bestows native gifts, and as Sovereign directs all things.
(2) A declaration concerning man (vv. 26-31).
a. He is the offspring of God (v. 26).
Since men are His offspring and bear His likeness, it is utterly folly to make images to Him.

b. Nations have their place b. God's purpose (v. 26).
c. Men should seek God (v. 27).
d. The present obligation to repent (vv. 30, 31).
3. The results of Paul's address (vv. 32, 34).
(1) Some mocked (v. 32).
(2) Some procrastinated (v. 32).
(3) Some believed (v. 34).

III. Paul in Corinth (Acts 18:1-11).
Paul came to Corinth a stranger. His method of gaining a foothold is worthy of note. His first task was to find a home (v. 2), his second was to earn his daily bread (v. 3).

1. Preaching in the synagogue at Corinth (vv. 4-8).
(1) Tim of (v. 4).
Every Sabbath day.
(2) Encouraged by the coming of Silas and Timothy (v. 5).
(3) Opposition to Paul (v. 6).
As he increased his activity, opposition also increased.

(4) The purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6).
Because of their blasphemy and opposition he ceased work among the Jews.
(5) He did not go far away (v. 7).
He remained sufficiently near so that those whose hearts God had touched could easily find him.

(6) His success (v. 8).
Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted and Paul departed from his usual custom and baptized him (1 Cor. 1:14). Many others also believed.

3. Paul's vision (vv. 9-11).
His experiences since coming to Europe were very trying, therefore he needed encouragement. It is just like the Lord to come when His servant has the greatest need. Note the Lord's words:

(1) "Be not afraid."
(2) "Speak and hold not thy peace."
(3) "I am with thee."
(4) "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee."
(5) "I have much people in this city."

Dead Notes
When Geraldine Farrar was a little girl in Medford, Mass., and first began to show her musical talent, she drove the neighbors frantic with her budding vocal efforts.

"Do you really have to do that?" a little boy in the neighborhood asked her one day.
"Of course I do," declared "Jerry."
"Beautiful music always seems to haunt me!"

"That's because you murder it first!" decided the wag and the future grand opera star crossed his name off her party list.—Los Angeles Times.

Rose as Bridal Flower
Orange blossom has always been the most used wedding flower, as it is supposed to bring luck and happiness. However, the rose often finds its way into a bouquet as it was once regarded as the queen of flowers and an emblem of beauty.

Many a girl lives to regret the day she married her ideal man.

To be ready for the worst requires considerable strength of mind.

OLD FOLKS SAY
WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of herbs and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Tinley Red Cross Chairman Tells of Work Done

Despite devastating floods, in the Mississippi Valley, and tornadoes, fires and other disasters in other sections of the United States, the American Red Cross during 1928 has brought relief to all and without any special disaster appeal, says Mrs. H. W. Wyman Roll Call Chairman for the Red Cross in Tinley Park, who is organizing her workers for the 1929 membership drive which will open on Armistice Day. The Red Cross has set a goal for five million members this year.

"The public may be surprised to know the extent of the Mississippi Valley floods this year," Mrs. Wyman said. "The floods this year lacked the dramatic elements of the 1927 floods, however, they brought hardship and suffering to almost one-half the number of counties affected in 1927. More than 120,000 persons were affected and relief was asked and given to more than 70,000 persons".

"During July the Red Cross met the heaviest demand of the year. During that month the flood sufferers were our major interest, but ten other relief operations, covering tornadoes, fires and epidemics, were rushed workers and money and relief was afforded many thousands of individuals. These workers and funds were available only because more than four million men and women last fall became members of the Red Cross. Their memberships paid for all this relief work. No special disaster appeal has been necessary."

"To carry on Red Cross activities during the next year it is estimated that at least five million memberships will be necessary during the next Roll Call. This Call will open on Armistice Day and close Thanksgiving. The Red Cross has proved itself and is truly the World's greatest relief agency --- ready every day, everywhere".

A Few Points on Al Smith's Record

Governor Smith protested against William Allen White's summary of the Smith record on matters affecting liquor, both before and after prohibition, complaining that it was inaccurate.

Mr. White defends his statements, without quoting his authorities, except to say that he did not draw on the material sent out by the Rev. O. R. Miller of the New York Civic League.

There need be no controversy here, if one goes to the public official records. The following digest is taken, without change except the omission of comment, from a compilation by Mr. Orville S. Poland of the New York Anti-Saloon League, made from documents accessible to any citizen.

1 Record on Referenda

Governor Smith has been consistently opposed to the referendum principle.

1907—April 3, voted to keep local option bill strangled in excise committee.

1910—April 26, voted against amending Raines law so as to allow local option in cities.

1911—May 24, voted against local option bill for cities, July 19, voted against Gray local option bill.

1912—Voted against Lincoln bill to grant local option to third-class cities.

1913—Appointed eight Tammany men out of thirteen on assembly excise committee and refused to give representatives of the people a chance to vote on any temperance legislation.

1914—March 19, voted against Gillett bills to grant local option to cities, city subdivisions and counties.

1915—March 31, voted against Fish bill for referendum on statewide prohibition. April 7, voted against Preswick bill to grant local option to university city of Ithaca. April 20, voted to kill Howard bill granting local option to cities, city subdivisions, and counties.

2. Record on Regulation of Liquor Traffic and Its Separation from Vice 1905—Voted against the Prentice bill to kill assignment houses and houses of ill-fame run as "Raines law" hotels, thereby voting to continue "Raines law hotel" abuses. Passed over two to one against his opposition.

1908—Voted against bill stiffening up regulatory and enforcement features of the liquor tax law.

1913—As speaker, engineered the defeat of the Knight bill against knowingly delivering liquor in dry territory except to bona fide consignee.

3. Record on Breaking Down Former Safeguards Against Liquor Traffic

1904—April 14, voted to force hotel bars into over three hundred dry towns and make hotels independent of town local option elections, and thus to nullify the town option feature of the liquor tax law.

1912—Voted for Hackett bill to make it harder to convict New York City liquor dealers for violating the law.

Dignified Service and Intelligent Understanding

When a loved one has passed on, and hearts hang heavy with sorrow, there is no greater consolation than knowing that our final tribute has been a fitting expression of love and respect. And, in the hour of stress it is a mighty relief to know that you can unhesitatingly surrender the burden of planning, arranging, and directing.

No matter where you live, we are fully equipped to render the utmost in service. No matter whether the last honors of the departed are planned on a magnificent scale or in a simple, unpretentious manner—your plans are our plans, and the funeral direction afforded at all times is smooth, complete and flawless—a fact to which thousands have enthusiastically testified.

TOUGH PROBLEM FOR TELEPHONE COMPANY

Rebuilds Three Exchanges Without Interfering With Handling of Million Calls a Day

What is declared to be the largest single transition project in telephone installation history was successfully completed recently in New York City. It involved the re-vamping of three existing central offices, with economizing in apparatus and space so as to provide for two additional offices to serve what is known as Manhattan's "white light" district.

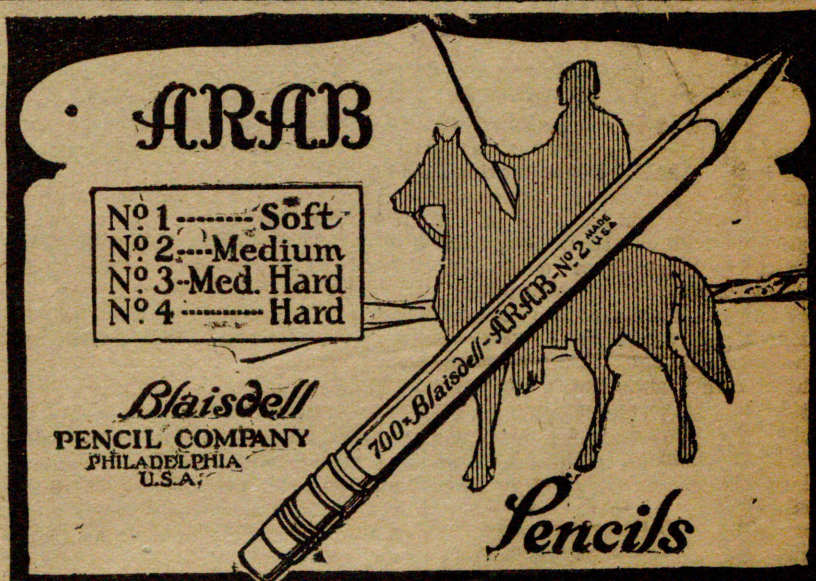

All the time that this huge transition was being carried out, traffic went on as usual throughout day and night, approximately 1,000,000 calls daily being handled through these offices. The project took place in the West Thirty-sixth street building, which serves the heart of New York's shopping, hotel, transit, garment manufacturing, theatrical and night life district. Here the saying, "Broadway never sleeps," applies and the transition job of necessity was carried along with particular care against service interruption by night as well as by day.

It was necessary to literally rebuild these central offices. The task involved the removal of the entire incoming multiple switch-board and the replacement of same, re-cabling and in some instances transferring from one set of frames to another. This had to be done, of course, without any interference with service and it was a most difficult task.

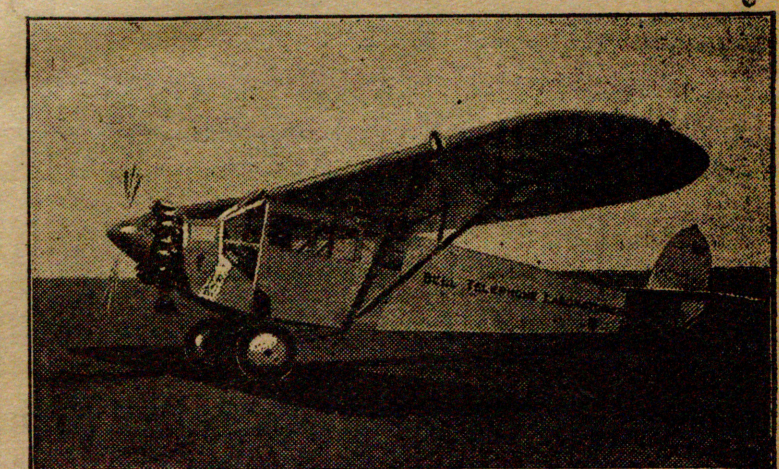

When the task was completed there were two new offices in addition to the existing three to serve this important district of Manhattan.

Songs of Troubadours

There were several kinds of songs sung by the troubadours—the canzonet, or love song; serenade, or evening song; aubade, or morning song; servante in praise of patrons, roundelay, or song with refrain or chorus; dance song accompanying the round dance, and the pastourelle, treating of Arcadian love.

THIS MONOPLANE SPECIALLY BUILT FOR RADIO TELEPHONE EXPERIMENTS

At the Radio Experimental Station of the Bell System at Whippany, N. J., a specially built airplane has been placed at the service of the Bell System engineers who are experimenting with radio telephone apparatus designed for airplane service.

Back in 1917, the Bell System engineers were working on radio telephone and telegraph equipment for the army; on July 2, at Langley Field, Hampton, Va., telephone communication was established between an airplane in flight and the ground, and successful telephone communication between airplanes in flight was maintained.

At that time there were obstacles which prevented the further development of airplane communication.

International Newsreel. With the end of the World War the technical staff of the Bell System concentrated upon the great work of rehabilitating telephone service in this country and to the extension and development of the service to meet unprecedented requirements.

The present day expansion of airplane service which promises a future development along commercial lines has emphasized the need of radio-telephone communication for aerial navigators, and to this end the Bell System engineers are applying themselves. In the solution of many problems involved in the extension of radio-telephone service over great distances, they have learned much which will aid them in perfecting airplane communication.

Back of Your Telephone

THE telephone user sees the telephone instrument in his home or office and, beyond a vague idea that there is a place known as the "exchange," has little knowledge of what it means to give telephone service.

Back of your telephone and of each of the other one and one-quarter million telephones operated by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, stand the service and the organization of 30,000 trained, experienced and loyal men and women—loyal to the ideals of the service in the business which is their life work, and loyal to the public which they serve.

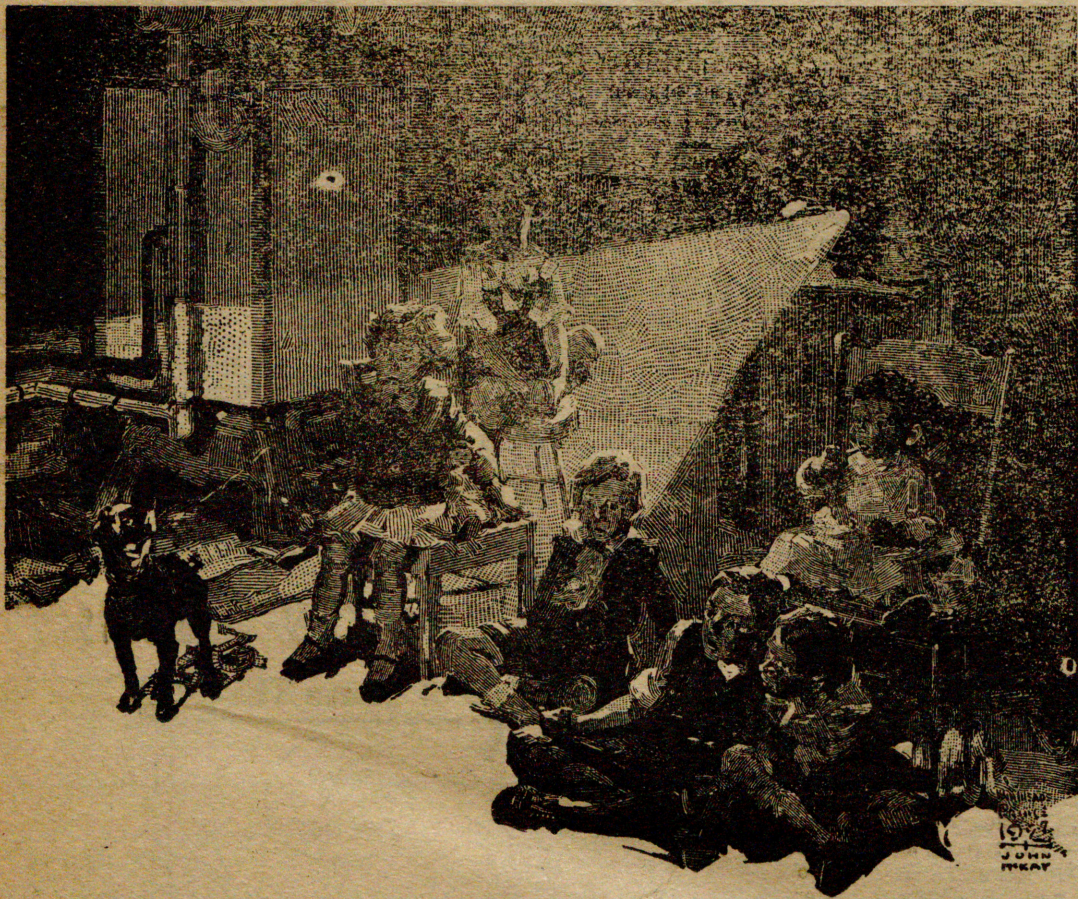

Operators, linemen, engineers, switchboard and cable specialists, business executives, collectors, stenographers, motor vehicle drivers, all these and more are represented in the army of telephone people, each with the common objective—adequate, satisfactory and continuous telephone service to the public.

Of all the public services there is none in which the human equation is so important as in telephone service. Every call completed requires that two individuals be given immediately upon request, an exclusive voice path, no matter where the call originates or where it is to be completed.

The efficient loyalty and team work of the men and women behind these telephones are assurance that the service will be continuous and adequate every hour of the day and night—now and in the future.

One Indian Who Works

Many Tall Feathers of the Glacier National Park reservation is one of a few American Indians who retains the respect of his tribesmen although he daily does a squaw's work of chopping his own firewood.

One of the reasons is that he's a widower. Another is that he is close to one hundred years old, and a sage of the council.

Many Tall Feathers had just one love affair in his lifetime and preferred to live with the memory of the cherished one who had joined the Great Spirit in her early womanhood.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Illinois has the third gross bonded debt of any state in the Union. Amounting to $145,292,500, but its per capita bonded debt of $19.91 is exceeded by that of 16 states. Bonds issued for construction of highways represent 66 per cent of the debt while soldiers' bonus bonds account for practically all of the remainder. New York has the largest gross debt of any state in the Union, amounting to $361,617,000. North Carolina ranks second with $155,692,600, and Illinois third with $145,292,500, and Massachusetts ranks fourth with a debt of $122,264,412. Four states, Florida, Nebraska, Kentucky and Wisconsin, have no bonded debt.

Progress which has been made in forestry in the last two years in Illinois was outlined by R. B. Miller, chief forester of Illinois, in an address before state game wardens recently. Mr. Miller urged co-operation of the wardens in placing forestry on a sound basis as one of the activities of the department. He stated that the foresters wished to co-operate with the director in every possible way in advancing his policies for a better and more efficient department. Director Gus Radebaugh has assigned to foresters well defined tasks, such as the making of surveys and reports, the posting of lands, the development of fire protection and planting plans on state lands.

The following contracts have been awarded by the state division of highways:

Route 72, section 120 B, Ogle county, bridge; to Ferguson Construction Co., Rockford, $28,213.17.

Route 150, section 135 A, Alexander county, grading; to Cameron Joyce Steam Shovel Co., Keokuk, Iowa, $33,297.10.

Route 3, section F-I, Cook county, bridge; to Ray Mann, Rockford, $29,440.

Expenditure of approximately a million dollars within the coming two years for permanent improvements was suggested by state fair officials at the close of the most successful Illinois exposition in its history. The recommendations will be made in the annual budget to be presented to the next general assembly. The improvement program consists of new buildings on various parts of the new ground purchased by the state a few years ago to make room for the constantly growing show. Plans to make the grounds a year round educational institution will also be considered. S. J. Stanard, director of agriculture, and General Manager Walter W. Lindley made known their views on further development of the fair grounds as the great exposition closed. Approximately 387,000 persons attended the exposition this year as compared with 337,000 in 1927, an increase of 50,000. According to Director Stanard one of the foremost needs by way of additional construction is the urgent demand for improved facilities for the 4-H club activities. Construction of a new and modern building in the newer portion of the grounds to replace the present home of the girls' school is also an urgent need.

The displays on view before the throngs of Illinois state fair visitors that filled the aisles of the Dairy Products building formed an industrial exposition of unusual interest. This department of the fair combined the competitive displays of dairy products and exhibits that were educational and commercial. The chief attraction in the dairy building this year, was the model representing the entire dairy industry. It presented every phase of dairy production from the farm to the consumer. This exhibit, in its size and beauty, vies with any ever offered at the various "World's fairs" and other expositions. Dairy products, competing for prizes, in open and in regional competition, drew unusual interest. "In quality, the milk, cream, butter and cheese displayed," according to the department superintendent, Col. C. C. Miner, assistant superintendent of the division of foods and dairies, "left nothing to be desired."

The division of architecture and engineering, state department of purchases and construction, has announced the tabulation of bids for work on the swimming pool at the Illinois School for the Deaf, Jacksonville. The apparent low bidders are as follows:

General work, R. H. Heintzman, Metamora, Ill., $23,990.
Heating, Sheehan & McNamara, Jacksonville, $2,486.
Plumbing equipment, Sheehan & McNamara, Jacksonville, $7,198.
Electric wiring, John M. Doyle, Jacksonville, $894.

The weekly health report issued a few days ago by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state director of health, shows comparatively few cases of contagious diseases in the counties of the downstate. The report follows in part:

Diphtheria—70, including Cook county, 56; Chicago, 44.
Scarlet fever—45, including Cook county, 28; Chicago, 33.
Smallpox—13, including Cook county, 6; Chicago, 5; Shelby county, 3.
Typhoid fever—50, including Cook county, 2; Chicago, 1; Montgomery county, 5.

Mrs. Daisy Phipps, Petersburg, has been adjudged the champion hog caller for the state of Illinois. She whooped her way to the championship at the third annual hog calling contest held during the Illinois state fair, and sent down to defeat the expert Guy Bender of Alexander, who held the state title for the past two years. In moving the championship from Morgan to Menard county, Mrs. Phipps not only enjoyed the distinction of defeating the well-known Mr. Bender, but also attained the honor of being the first woman to win the championship of Illinois in hog calling. Her victory gives her possession for a year of the beautiful loving cup offered in 1926 by the Springfield chamber of commerce. Mr. Bender held two legs on the trophy, and had he been victorious in the recent contest, it would have become his permanently.

A tremendous increase in Illinois farm business from the real estate dealer's point of view was reported at a conference held recently by the State Realtors' association in Springfield. "Our association members have done more farm business within the last three months than in the preceding two years," Max Murdock, general counsel for the realtors, stated.

Proposals for the construction of important major units of the Illinois deep waterway were opened recently in Springfield by Leslie Small, director of purchases and construction, and William F. Mulvihill, supervisor of the Illinois waterway construction. One proposed contract calls for the construction and installation of gate and valve operating machinery for all five waterway locks—Lockport (the highest in the world), Brandon road, Dresden Island, Marseilles and Starved Rock. The Marseilles and Lockport locks are complete except for this machinery.

The 1928 Illinois State Fair Dog show is history, and Mrs. H. Earl Hoover, Glencoe, who exhibited Blue Stockings of Manchou, a Chow Chow, is the possessor of the governor's cup, given to the best dog in the show. The dog show this year was twice as large as the one held last year and attracted entries from all parts of the West. A. J. Baker, Springfield, secretary of the Illinois Kennel club, pronounced the show a record breaker. The tent used for the exhibit was twice as large as that used last year and the animals were viewed by a capacity crowd at all times. The governor's cup is 20 inches high, gold lined and appropriately carved. Members of the association are looking forward to the day when the kennel show will be housed in a new building featuring the latest benches and comforts for dogs on display.

Three public hearings of the Illinois valley flood control commission, held recently, were intended as opportunities for all concerned regarding the future welfare of the valley to discuss means of flood prevention with the men named by Gov. Len Small to work out some plan and report to the next session of the general assembly. This commission, created by an act of legislature and executive appointment, is organized as follows: Senator A. S. Cuthbertson of Bunkerhill is chairman; A. T. Dunn, a citizen of the valley, living near Beardstown, is secretary; Representative H. V. Teel of Rushville, vice chairman; Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture, and William F. Mulvihill, superintendent of waterways in the department of purchases and construction, as an engineer, are ex-officio members, representing the state government.

Logan county corn held up a consistent record in capturing prizes in corn shows when samples exhibited at the Illinois State fair won sweepstakes grand champion awards in both the ten-ear and bushel classes. A ten-ear sample of yellow corn of Rentschler brothers of Chestnut captured the sweepstakes in that class, while a bushel sample of Oscar Mountjoy, Atlanta, won the sweepstakes honors also.

Farm mutual insurance companies are not required to suspend business when the territory in which they are organized becomes a part of a city. This is the opinion of Attorney General Carlstrom given to the state division of insurance in response to an inquiry concerning the status of companies organized in Cook county, the territory of which has been incorporated in to the city of Chicago.

Much of the credit for obtaining the appropriation for the Capitol city's new federal building is given former Gov. Richard Yates, Springfield, who is Republican candidate for re-election as congressman-at-large, in a letter received by Congressman Yates from Congressman M. H. Thatcher of the Fifth Kentucky district, who is an influential member of the national house appropriations committee.

Two hundred youths received diplomas from State Superintendent of public instruction Francis G. Blair at the end of the special boys' State Fair school. Mr. Blair also delivered the commencement address. The boys went through a round of activities during the week of the fair studying some of the more vital factors of farming. The students in the school were permitted to view all of the various exhibits during the fair and at the same time continue their course of study.

After a lone struggle for the past 19 years to carry on the work of the Morning Star Mission at Joliet, the friends of Supt. Peter McCarthy are now conducting a drive to raise the much needed funds to help ease the load Supt. McCarthy has been carrying alone these many years. The Mission is known nationally and internationally. Great work has and is being done all free and in the name of the Master and Humanity. There is no other enterprise in which any one can invest to better advantage from a Christian point of view than in the work of the Mission. If you can spare $15 a year or less send it to Supt. Peter McCarthy, Morning Star Mission, Joliet, Ill., and it will start doing good work. Supt. McCarthy believes living Christ's precepts daily. Aunt of Mrs. Wm. Semmler Dies

Mrs. Malinda Van Gunden, aged 75 years, aunt of Mrs. Wm. Semmler of Mokena, died at the University hospital, Chicago last Saturday noon following a several weeks illness.

Her grand daughter, Mrs. LaRue Leonardi was brutally murdered in Chicago in May and Mrs. Van Gunden has been in poor health since. Funeral services for Mrs. Van Gunden were held Monday in Ottawa, of which city she was a former resident, at two o'clock from the Glad-felter chapel. Rev. Mr. Olson, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, officiated. Interment was in Ottawa Avenue cemetery.

Mrs. Van Gunden was born October 6, 1853 in Naperville. She was united in marriage to Herman Wergen of Ottawa in 1879 and to this union, four children were born, one son and two daughters preceding their mother in death. In 1909 Mr. Wergen died.

Later she was married to Fred Van Gunden in Chicago, where she resided until her death. Mrs. Van Gunden was ill for a month.

The deceased is survived by her husband, one son Arthur Wergen, four grandchildren, one great-grand child, three sisters, Mrs. Sophia Hohl, Ellsworth, Kan., Mrs. Elizabeth Howes, Los Gatos, Cal., Mrs. Margaret Oestreich, Joliet; one brother, Felix Moyer of Waynesville, Mo., and many nieces and nephews.

Those who attended the funeral outside of Ottawa were Mrs. Margaret Oestreich, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Oestreich, Mr. and Mrs. H. Deadmore, Mrs. Wm. Kettner of Joliet, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and daughters, Misses Adeline and Ada of Mokena.

Former Mokena Resident Robbed

Word comes that the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schneider in St. Louis was robbed last Sunday while they were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Neithammer in the same city. Considerable loot was taken. At the same time a neighboring residence was robbed. The police were notified and latter several boys were arrested and part of the things stolen were recovered. Mrs. Schneider was formerly Miss Ruth Neithammer of Mokena.

Defends Tammany

sent Mr. Tweed (who was just a tool of Connolly and Sweeny) to jail? Samuel J. Tilden and Andrew Green two democrats, were responsible for the breaking up of the Tweed ring. John Morrissey was a member of Tammany Hall, but left that organization to organize the County Democracy. I knew Mr. Croker well. He tried to direct the affairs of Tammany Hall in an honest manner.

But why go way back sixty years to hunt up the record of Tammany Hall? Why not try Philadelphia? There was no time Tammany Hall could ever compete with the republican organization of that city. And those living in Cook county and Chicago had best keep their mouths closed about corruption.

Tinley Flower Show Rivals Chicago Display

This flower show rivaled the famed flower shows held in the Sherman House in Chicago this spring it was declared by those who had seen both shows. Mrs. R. J. Hug had extended a special invitation to L. W. Nack, president of the Chicago Men's Garden Club to attend and he in turn invited the Tinley Park Garden Club members to attend the Chicago Men's Garden Club Show on September 7th and 8th at the Sherman Hotel.

The Tinley Club also had a duplicate of the shadow box which they had exhibited at the Flower Show at the Sherman Hotel last spring and on which they were awarded a white ribbon, denoting honorable mention.

The Barnard Seed Co., of Chicago and the Henry Field Co., of Shenandoah, Iowa sent free seeds and catalogs which were distributed to the visitors. The Tinley Flower Show lasted for two days, Wednesday and Thursday, September 5th and 6th. It is said it outvalued by far the show of last year. The members of the club and the village of Tinley Park are to be highly complimented on the excellent show which certainly was a credit to both.

A list of prize winners and other particulars will appear in next week's issue.

Richard R. Ryan had a fine assortment of Garden birds on sale at the flower show.

HOLDS STEP-SAVING RECORD FOR NATION

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Has First Place in Development of Extension Telephones

Among cities of 50,000 population or more in which the Bell System operates, Mount Vernon, N. Y., has the distinction of possessing a larger development of residence extension telephones than any other city in the United States. Next to Mount Vernon is ranked East Orange, N. J. In these communities reside many New York business men who, having found extension telephones so useful in their offices, desire to have their homes similarly equipped.

The advantage of an extension telephone in the home is that it saves the housewife many weary steps. The use of such extension telephones is increasing rapidly, not only in New York and suburbs, but in other parts of the country. The city of Richmond, Va., has a high development of home extension telephones and likewise Washington, D. C.

Among other large cities of over 50,000 population where the Bell System reports a large proportion of extension telephones are: Portland (Me.), Hartford (Conn.), Albany (N. Y.), Syracuse (N. Y.), Yonkers (N. Y.), Atlantic City (N. J.), Harrisburg (Pa.), Pittsburgh (Pa.), Huntington (W. Va.), Oak Park (Ill.), Springfield (Ill.), Cedar Rapids (Ia.), Omaha (Neb.), Duluth (Minn.), Des Moines (Ia.), Dallas (Tex.), Little Rock (Ark.), Houston (Tex.), Oklahoma City (Okla.), St. Joseph (Mo.), Topeka (Kans.), Tulsa (Okla.), Wichita (Kans.), Denver (Colo.), San Francisco (Cal.), and Oakland (Cal.).

Facts About the Telephone

Transatlantic telephone service has been extended to Malmo, Sweden.

The state of Vermont has a total of seventy-two telephone companies.

London, England and Prague, the capital of Czechoslovakia, are now connected by telephone.

An average of over 400,000 toll and Long Distance telephone calls a day is made in the state of New Jersey.

A total of 2,320,000 telephone calls were completed over the Bell lines to points from Connecticut outside the state during 1927.

About 90 per cent of all toll calls in the Bell System are now handled while the subscriber remains at the telephone, as compared with 80 per cent a year ago.

In 1917 there were 53,123 Bell telephones in the state of Louisiana. Now there are more than 125,000, a gain of over 140 per cent in the decade from 1917 to 1927.

The first telephone in the city of Baltimore was installed by a coal dealer between his office and his coal yard. This occurred just a little bit more than half a century ago.

There are 11,600,000 inhabitants of New York State and there is a daily average of 11,550,000 telephone calls each twenty-four hours over the wires of the Bell System in the state.

Youths Present Social Problem

nels they could do untold good for themselves as well as the community.

Mokena has four churches and yet there is nothing being done to provide good wholesome activities for the young people to do. Of course the churches and schools alone cannot remedy the situation. The homes of the community must lay the foundation. It is a lamentable fact that many of the boys have not the right home influence back of them and often times there is no home influence at all. This is a social problem that must be solved. If these young boys are allowed to go on in the way they have started they will soon be graduates of the school of crime and wind up in police courts and jails. Cannot the churches of Mokena work together and work out some plan for providing some way to help the young folks in their social problems? With winter coming on there ought to be any amount of social activities that would tend to be a social and moral uplift nature. People of Mokena think this matter over. The youth of today will be the citizens of tomorrow. The old idea that a boy or girl must sow their wild oats is all the bunk. They can only expect to reap a crop of chaff from such seed. Let us wake up and do something for the youth of our community so that in future years they can thank us for leading them aright instead of condemning us for failure to do our duty toward them.

ANGLO-EUROPEAN TELEPHONE NOW WELL DEVELOPED

Fifty-seven Circuits Connect British Isles With Their Continental Neighbors

Telephone service between England and the Continent was inaugurated in April, 1891, when two circuits were completed between London and Paris. It was not until twelve years later, in 1903, that communication with Belgium began with two London-Brussels circuits.

When war broke out in 1914, twenty-three years after the Anglo-Continental service began, there were but thirteen circuits in operation and they carried just about one thousand calls a day. However, during the war, the telephone repeater came into existence in the United States, where it was perfected by engineers of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for use in the first transcontinental line, uniting the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, which was then being completed. The development of the telephone repeater at once attracted attention in Europe, where it was used on an extensive scale during the war; by the Germans to maintain communication between Berlin and Constantinople and with the German Headquarters in Macedonia, Roumania and Russia, and by the Allies for communication between their headquarters in France and Italy; and in Great Britain for the maintenance of communication at a critical time between London and the Military Headquarters in the north of England and Scotland.

Following the war, the first task was that of providing sufficient plant to meet demands for internal services, but by 1922, extensions of international services began, with the result that in September of that year an Anglo-Dutch service was opened, with two circuits between London, Amsterdam and Rotterdam. Since that time communication with the continent has increased to such an extent that there are now fifty-seven Anglo-Continental circuits in operation as compared with thirteen in August of 1914.

On the Anglo-French, Anglo-Belgian and the Anglo-Swiss circuits, the French language is employed for operating purposes, but on the other routes a considerable amount of English and German is used. The operators, for the most part, are required to speak more than one language.

GIRL, SEVENTEEN, SEES FIRST TELEPHONE POLE

People get so accustomed to our modern conveniences that they do not realize that there are some people in the world who never have seen them. The other day a seventeen year old girl from St. Kilda, a lonely island in the outer Hebrides, Inverness-shire, 100 miles from the Scottish coast, Miss Rachel Gillis, was taken on a trip to Lancashire. It was the first time she had ever left her island home and never before had she seen a telephone or a telegraph pole, a tree, a horse, a motor car or a railway train.

"What are those funny wires hanging on the poles for?" she asked. She also was very much interested in observing trees, which she had seen before only in pictures.
